RICE FARMING IN PAKISTAN:

Sindh's Largest Grain Market Reopens After Breakthrough Deal Between Farmers and Millers :

- After weeks of tension and a complete shutdown of the Qambar-Shahdakot Anaj Mandi, Sindh's largest grain market has finally reopened following a hard-won agreement between farmers and rice millers. The dispute had centered on heavy deductions applied to paddy crops and the burden of "hidden taxes," which had pushed growers to protest and halt all trading. Deputy Commissioner Imdad Hussain Abro, along with local lawmakers and representatives of grower and miller associations from Sindh and Balochistan, played a decisive role in bringing all sides to one table. After lengthy negotiations held at the DC office, stakeholders agreed on a fixed deduction of 65 kilos per 100 maunds of paddy, while hidden levies previously ranging from Rs18 to Rs20 per kg were abolished. The resolution marks the first time leaders in the region collectively settled such a longstanding issue, reopening the path for smooth trading and reviving economic activity.
- With nearly 140 to 400 rice mills depending on the district's paddy inflow, the shutdown had severely affected thousands of workers and growers. The new agreement provides relief to abadgars, who already struggle with rising input costs, while also protecting the interests of millers who rely on moisture-based measurements. Stakeholders emphasized that the 65-kilo deduction formula will now apply uniformly across Kharif and Rabi crops, ensuring fairness and stability. As trading resumes, daily wage earners return to work, growers regain access to markets, and the region's rice-driven economy contributing billions to the national exchequer begins to move again. Leaders from both sides hailed the breakthrough as a positive turning point, one that restores trust and strengthens the backbone of Sindh's agricultural trade. (02 December 2025)
